We feel sorry for our competitors who are trying to sell goods at a profit, but who can blame the customer who has the money, or a good credit to buy with, for buying from us when he can save from $5 to $7 on a suit and get, at the same time, the very nicest goods kept in the city?

I was nervous, cold hands and feet, palpitation, headache, backache, constipation, leucorrhoea and no appetite, with bearing-down pains. I got so weak I could not walk around. I had to keep my bed, thinking I would never get any better.

One day my husband got one of your little books and read it to me. He said there was nothing doing me any good. I said I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I did try it. After the first few weeks my appetite was better; I was able to sit up in bed

THE FULTON DEMOCRACY.

Its Message to the People in This and Other States.

1. The democracy of Fulton county in mass meeting assembled, offers its continued adherence to those fundamental principles of free popular government, based on home rule and individual liberty, as declared by the national democratic platform from 1888 to 1892, vindicated by the people in the elections of 1876 and 1884, and gloriously illustrated in the leadership of Grover Cleveland, which gave, in 1892, control of the federal government and its legislation to the friends of the constitution and the untiring opponents of the republican rule—the national democracy.

2. CONFIDING IN THE WISDOM, PATRIOTISM AND COURAGE OF PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, and the integrity of purpose on the part of his administration, that all those great principles of final relief and civil reform, clearly set forth in the Chicago platform and pivoted on reform in our system of custom house taxation, should have force and effect in the laws to be enacted by congress and in the conduct of every department of the government, WE UNQUALIFIEDLY ENDORSE THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM, AND CALL UPON THE ADMINISTRATION TO MATERIALIZE ITS PLEDGES INTO LAWS.

3. We believe that the only hope for a return of public prosperity, with relief to the people from the burdens and injustices of the long-continued administration of the government by the republican party, is in the success of the democratic party in the union, and that this success may not be in the least endangered, we would ignore any differences which exist in those matters of detail involved in the solution of these great questions of economic and financial reform to which the national democracy is pledged, and defer discussion and agreement thereon to such time as will not hinder us in meeting the common enemy of constitutional government and the best interests of the whole country, as well as Georgia and the south.

The Money Power in Legislation.

The New York Times has turned state's evidence. It has frequently happened that, when The Constitution and other democratic newspapers protested against the influence of the money power in legislation, such organs of eastern opinion as The New York Times would seize upon these protests and hold them up as evidences of sectionalism and characterize them as efforts to array public opinion against the wealthy classes.

Our readers will remember the peculiar comments that The New York Times and Journals of its kind made in the attitude of those southern and western newspapers that showed how and why the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, without substitute legislation would establish the single gold standard in this country and bring about a serious convulsion in trade and business. The element seeking unconditional repeal—the element whose influence had brought about a coalition between the eastern democrats and republicans in congress—was variously described as the money power, the gold trust and the Wall Street influence, but whatever name was given it was intended to describe one element only, namely, the organization of wealth for the purpose of influencing legislation—the combination of capital seeking its own selfish aggrandizement through the medium of congressional action.

The attacks of The Constitution on this element were so irritating and went so near to the mark that presently their organs began to serve notice on the people of the south that persistent criticism of the money power and references to Wall Street would be very hurtful to this section—would have a tendency to drive capital away from this section. This cheap and convenient form of argument in favor of legislative robbery had a momentary effect in the south. Some of the weak-kneed brethren began to tip-toe softly around and talk in whispers.

It was a beautiful scene—the money power organized to influence financial and tariff legislation in its own interests and the southern newspapers that were bold enough to denounce the outrage warned that their protests would drive away capital from this section! What was the true character of this threat? We give it in plain English: "Money borrowers of the south, if your home newspapers continue to expose the efforts we are making to secure profits out of the gold standard and tariff laws, you can get no more money from us. What do you care about the rights and interests of the people, so long as you can borrow money from us? Muzzle your newspapers!"

The Constitution, we are glad to say, was not in a position to wear a muzzle gracefully. It was the cheapness of the threat and the foulness of the motives that suggested it, and it has continued to tell the people of the uses to which legislation is put by the money power, which selects its tools and instruments without regard to their party affiliations.

The very same money power that succeeded in suppressing legislation in behalf of the people and in establishing the single gold standard, has been active in defeating the aims of the tariff reformers, and so far as the senate is concerned, has been successful beyond its hopes. As a result of this, we find The New York Times, one of the newspapers that objected to criticisms of the money power, thundering forth against the vicious combination in pretty much the same terms The Constitution has employed. As The Times makes some remarks which democrats everywhere ought to read, consider and inwardly digest, we give a prominent place to its editorial article.

Our New York contemporary declares that the senate has just been giving the most unanswerable evidence that the mischievous money power exists and that it is dangerously strong. We are surprised to see such an admission in that quarter. Nothing could be more significant. The money power in politics exists and it has proved to be invincible in legislation thus far. It has established the single gold standard. It has raised the treasury and compelled a bond issue, and has the machinery all arranged for another issue. It has wrested from the people of the states the banking privileges, that would enable them to utilize their property and credit in securing a local currency sufficient for their needs. And now it has laid its powerful hands on tariff revision.

What is to be the end of it? The business of the country is prostrate before the British gold standard. It has cut down property values, prices and wages and thrown millions of people out of work. It has inaugurated civil war in no less than seven states. It has wrought ruin and misery in all parts of the country. And now the money power that has accomplished this says to congress that it shall continue to tax the people for the benefit of the trusts and monopolists who are active partners in this vast combination of wealth, organized to control the economic legislation of the public.

The people will be ruined unless the democrats get together everywhere and elect men who cannot be controlled by the money power.

Getting On Their Feet.

It is now a settled fact that the reorganization of the Richmond Terminal is a success. It is progressing rapidly on satisfactory lines and the details will soon be arranged.

The gratifying announcement is also made that a plan will soon be agreed upon for the reorganization of the Central, on a basis that will leave the road in the hands of its owners.

The Richmond and Danville property was sold yesterday to the representatives of Drexel, Morgan & Co., and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia will be sold in a few days and thus end the receivership period of its career.

Strong men are behind the reorganization of these great southern transportation lines. They will set the roads on their feet again, and the stockholders will soon begin to get their share of the profits.

The change will benefit the entire south, and especially the region tributary to the roads in question. It is understood that the managers are in favor of pursuing a liberal policy that will build up the country along their lines, and thus increase their traffic by promoting immigration and giving producers better marketing facilities. With immense capital back of these roads and a progressive management there can be no doubt about their future prosperity. Their reorganization will be hailed with pleasure throughout the south.

The Senate and the Exposition.

The proposed government appropriation of $200,000 for the Atlanta exposition has been favorably reported to the senate, and it is safe to say that it will now go through as a part of the sundry civil bill.

It will be speedily acted on in the senate and then go to the house with all the weight of this endorsement in its favor.

In its present shape the government appropriation is almost an absolute certainty. The moral effect of the government's support and approval cannot fail to greatly advance the interests of the exposition, encourage its friends and stimulate them to push it forward.

The appropriation is in sight, and the national character of our great enterprise will at once be recognized by the various nations invited to take part in it. The senate will act without unnecessary delay and the house will follow.

The Treasury Gold.

At this writing the gold reserve in the treasury is something less than $67,000,000, which is about the point it touched in February when Mr. Carlisle announced that a bond issue was absolutely necessary to keep the bulk of the treasury above water.

But there seems to be a different state of feeling among the treasury officials at this time. That is to say, the newspaper correspondents who make a specialty of treasury department news, say that everything is serene there on account of a confident feeling among the officials that the gold exports must soon cease and that the tariff measure will soon become a law, thus putting an end to the uncertainty. But we have sometimes observed that these correspondents of the financial papers deem it their duty occasionally to suppress the facts in order that no wave of trouble may roll over the sensitive souls that are close enough to the sub-treasury in New York to make a run on it.

In spite of the caution of the correspondents, therefore, we deem it our duty to say that if a bond issue was imperative last February it is imperative now, and we do not believe it was necessary then. Behind the scenes in Wall Street and in Washington, every preparation is made, and it is only necessary now to prepare the outside public for the inevitable.

As a matter of fact the gold exporting record was broken during the merry month of May, when the treasury was added for $32,000,000—a larger sum by one million of dollars than was ever paid out of the people's treasury before in the history of the government. Those who are fond of working their jaws may chew on this end, very little has been said about this, and, in fact, Wall Street has betrayed no sort of emotion over the heavy export of gold that has been going on recently, although when the money power was conspiring to repeal the Sherman law without substitute legislation, the export of gold, due to perfectly natural conditions, Wall Street had violent hysterics every day.

But the conditions under which gold is going out now are altogether unnatural, and the situation is alarming to those who would not see the nation on gold would be a step instead of a blessing. When the Sherman law was in operation the place of every dollar that went out was supplied by the silver notes issued against the bullion. Now, every dollar of gold that goes out is so much taken from the basis of our currency, so that our last financial condition is infinitely worse than the first, even if we measure it by the arguments employed by the gold trust.

There is another fact in regard to the exports of gold that may be interesting to the casual reader, to-wit: The silver notes have played no part in the recent raid that has been made on the treasury. Greenbacks have been paid in for the gold, and everything has been serene. Why? Because it will be with the law to issue bonds to replenish the gold reserve that has been depleted to redeem the greenbacks. Therefore, the new issue of bonds will be made for the purpose of redeeming greenbacks.

The Wiman Case. The developments in the case of Erastus Wiman will doubtless surprise and shock thousands of people who have had confidence in the defendant for many years.

The most damaging thing against Wiman was his own letter to Mr. Dun, of Dun's Commercial Agency, in which he admitted that he had fraudulently signed the name of E. W. Bullinger to two checks of the firm made payable to Bullinger's order. Wiman said that he had no excuse to make, but for the sake of his wife and children and his long service to Dun he begged the latter to overlook his offense and take no legal steps against him.

The reading of this letter in court produced a tremendous effect. It clinched the case against the defendant, but his lawyer bitterly denounced the prosecution, and claimed that his client was a soft-hearted fool, who had built up Wiman's fortune. He declared that Wiman had served Dun for forty years and was not guilty of any intentional crime, and that the prosecution was instigated by an enemy of Wiman's, who had poisoned Dun's mind against him.

It is admitted that Dun is mainly indebted to Wiman for his present prosperity, but it is very evident that he presumed upon his friendly relations with his employer, and was guilty of great irregularities in financial matters, although it does not appear that he intended to defraud anybody. Friendship and finance do not run together these days.

More Money Needed.

A writer in The Chicago Times sums up thirty years of our financial history in the following:

The amount of money in circulation at the close of the war in 1865 was $2,000,000,000. While every man, woman and child, great and small, had a share in it. Since then our population has increased to 30,000,000 of people, and we have in actual circulation today among the people only $800,000,000, or $1,200,000,000 less. This criminal contraction of money with a continual increase of people is the cause of falling prices. In 1865 there was $50 for every man, woman and child. Now there is only $26.70. Prices for everything were good. The poorest laborer could promise great things for his money. He could buy a house and keep his family in comfort five times as much money in circulation then as now, and only a little more than half as much money in circulation now. The greater portion of the money was treasury notes, which General Grant said at the time was the "best currency that our country had ever known." There is no more money in circulation than there was in the last season of the year. Peace and plenty had come and the world of trade and commerce was booming, and we had hope driven away the scars of war and the terrors of sorrow. The cause, therefore, of present deplorable conditions is want of money.

There is one certain and prompt remedy for this, and that is an increase of currency. This will cause industry to prosper and prices to go up, with immediate demands for labor. Trade will be active, civilization will advance, and the whole country will be prosperous and happy.

Whatever quibbling there may be over figures, these statements in the main are correct. A larger volume of sound currency will give us better prices, and it has been demonstrated that we can make treasury notes safely and satisfactorily serve the people as a circulating medium, either with or without gold.

Prices have fallen, trade and industry have suffered and millions have been thrown out of employment simply because our financial legislation has been dictated by English capitalists and our moneyed men who want to see money scarce and dear, so that each dollar of their income will command more and more of labor and its products. The cure is to reverse our financial policy and return to the old system under which the country enjoyed such general prosperity. In this country there is no danger of issuing too much currency. The people would soon call a halt. They want a safe currency, but they do not want a standard dollar that increases its purchasing power every year, and makes the debtor pay more than he owes, while the toiler cannot get the value of his labor and its products.

A Case of Blind Justice.

According to The New York Recorder, Judge Gaylor is too careless and reckless in his methods. He admits that he sometimes signs papers without reading them, when they are presented by reputable lawyers.

The admission came out when several election officials were fined $250 each. They protested, and the judge denied that he had imposed the fines. Then he was confronted with his own order, and he said that he had signed it without reading it.

Now, what is to be done about it? Will the fines be collected? Here is a judge who was taken from an humble place at the bar and elevated to a $15,000 place on the bench, where he signs orders which mean fine or imprisonment, without reading them, simply because he is asked to do so by reputable lawyers!

Judge Gaylor should sign one more paper—his resignation of his high office. He has no business on the bench.

Editor J. A. Hall, who is now at the head of The Morning Tribune under the new management, is a young journalist who has already made his mark on the state and national press. His articles in a lighter vein show talent of a high order, and his readers have good reason to regard him as one of the coming men in Georgia journalism.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Experiments to determine the influence of electricity upon the growth of plants have shown remarkable results. An apparatus consisting of poles connected by a wire and an incandescent lamp, was placed over an inclosed area was arranged. The ordinary grain crops grow within the inclosure showed an increase of from 25 to 35 per cent. All other crops were increased in proportion. The scientist who conducted the experiments also tried the effect of electrifying seeds before planting and found that they grew more rapidly to the current for only two minutes the rapidity of their growth was nearly doubled.

"Cold ten" has gradually gone out of fashion as the prevailing senate tittle since Thurman, Edmunds and their contemporaries have retired to private life, and is now a thing of the past. The only mention recently given now by the senators when they flee for a few moments from the dreary tariff talk to seek the consolation of the people of his state, is "Did you hear me let 'im down?"

The Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, bishop of Mississippi, recently visited the north to preach the commencement sermon at Lehigh university. He told a New York reporter regarding lynching in the south, "On this subject there is but one opinion in Mississippi. The people lynch for one thing and one thing only. They lynch a man to such a pass that a girl six years old cannot go from one neighbor's house to another without danger of being carried away and torn to pieces by a mob of brute beasts, what else can we do? There have been so many terrible cases. I must say, too, that in all the years I have lived in the south I have never known of a lynching where the negroes, when caught, always confess or are absolutely identified. The laws are slow, the jails are full and the lawyers are hard and unfeeling. The simple people always are. The offense is a capital one all over the south. So the people save delay by simply resuming their natural course of justice. They hang the criminal." Bishop Thompson is one of the ablest minds in the Episcopal church in the south. He was born in Ireland and was for many years editor of The New York Churchman.

Have you noticed a peculiar haze in the atmosphere during the past week? It is supposed to be caused by a fine dust thrown out by some volcanic disturbance in an obscure corner of the globe. Our newspaper columns will probably explain it in a few days.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton, of New York, thinks the times are out of joint. He says: "But what a state the land is in! What a state of confusion! The people are over this Coxeyism and the doings of the democratic congress and wondering where it was all going to end. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer every day. The spirit of turmoil is everywhere, the same spirit that caused the French revolution. When all the hungry ones get together and know their power, what a power that will be! It has not yet been demonstrated whether a republic is an enduring fact or only a theory. Doubt in the future, where I have been, there are three men to every place. There are more steel rails than can be used in six years and more horses than can be harnessed to them. I tell you there are too many people in the world. There is only one remedy—war or pestilence. Sweep 2,000,000,000 of the race off the face of the earth, and the only remedy. We are wrong in our civilized ideas of mercy and kindness. We must increase the number of the human race in the millions and keep the millions in penitence. The Lacedaemonians used to exterminate them. It is a good idea, too. The world is really no better than it was at the time of the flood."

Florida is making a fine health record. The state board of health's official bulletin for April shows that only 22 persons died in Florida during that month. If it is an average month the total deaths for a year would be 2,640. This would be less than the number of deaths in the Jackson Memorial Hospital, which is showing a healthfulness for the state that could scarcely be equalled by any other state in the union. Consumption carried off more people than any other one disease. The number being thirty-nine. It would hardly be fair to charge up all of the deaths from consumption to the state, as many of the sufferers from all over the country were there in the hope of being restored to health or benefited. However, as the deaths occur there, they have to go into the official record. The statistics show that there were twenty-seven victims, and was followed by heart disease, with seventeen victims. In the whole state there were only two deaths from cholera, but free from any kind of the number of persons dying forty-six were over sixty years old, twenty-seven were over seventy-six, and one over eighty-two. Four died of senile decay. This showing proves the idea, now gradually disappearing, that Florida is an unhealthy state to live without foundation in fact.

A GREETING FROM GEORGIA.

When Baby Put on Pants. It's a day we all remember, and it's scene of solemn state, Still casts a gleam of sadness, when at home we congregate; For a baby form is missing, and no childish prattle grants. It's music sweet, refreshing, since the baby put on pants.

'Twas a transformation truly, and it marked an epoch grave, It took away dear babyland and boyhood to us gave; The change could be discovered with the slightest kind of glance At the prize-fused face of baby—that day he put on pants.

It closed the doors of lullaby and opened wide the gate, That leads from arms of mother to the hall of man's estate; The light of dawning future 'cross the fragrant pathway glances, Of baby, and enthral him—on the day he put on pants.

"Is that where he got his start?"

"Then you are off about him laying the foundation—I should think his hens laid the foundation for him."

What She Had.

"Have you any personal property, madam?" he asked politely.

"No; mine is all real," she answered, as her husband came staggering up the street.

What They Like.

"Do farmers like short stories?" he asked as he crept into the agricultural editor's room.

"No, they are more interested in the production of cereals."

Let Him Down.

He was one of these here smart alecks who always had a way.

No matter who was talkin'—it was always that a-way.

He'd get off somethin' cuttin', an' then look all around.

An' enigh he'd giggle, "Did ye hear me let 'im down?"

It got to be a habit, an' he didn't seem to see,

That folks was gittin' weary of his manner fresh an' free;

Er a crowd of 'em together w'd all listen to the sound,

O' that measley voice a-whinnin', "Did you see me let 'im down?"

One day the nabors got 'im, and they had a quiet talk,

Among themselves an' ast 'em 'ed he'd take a little walk;

He objected, but he wigged just a few feet from the group,

As he choked, and kind o' grimly ast some one to let him down.

CAMPAIGNING IN GEORGIA.

The Augusta Herald reflects the sentiments of very many Georgians when it says:

The Macon Telegraph has made any number of friends in Augusta during the present campaign. We are sorry to say that today those who had begun to say the paper was suddenly and without any reason or cause, have been turned away by the editors in a most unbecoming manner. It is almost impossible, in so short a time, for it or any one else to correct its unfairness. There are those who agree that the present state campaign did not warrant such a measure.

"In his speech in Macon Monday night General Evans said that to defeat him because he had not the ability to govern would be to believe that the fact that he had been a confederate general alone made him competent to be governor. But if it were admitted that he had the ability, and was worthy to be governor, and then to defeat him simply because he had been a general—this would be a most unbecoming thing for a paper that once stood so high for The Telegraph to do."

The Macon Telegraph has distorted this statement into an assertion that General Evans said if he was beaten for governor he wanted to put his grave on Memorial Day. The memory of confederates was being observed. And on this contention of statement he has based a scathing article. The man who wrote this and the paper that published it, are doing wrong to a politician and were being done.

"Another unfair thing for a paper that once stood so high for The Telegraph to do is to state that General Evans said that Atlanta had ordered torchlight to celebrate Evans's victory in Bibb, and made it prominent by editorial discussion. This is a distortion of the facts. It is going to do his duty to his party, no matter what becomes of his personal ambition to go to the United States senate. He has been elected to the senate by the people of Georgia, and he is booked for campaign work in other states as well."

"Whoever the democratic nominee may be for governor," says The Barnesville Gazette, "he must be elected. This is no time to make democratic success uncertain."

Hon. J. G. Lester is out in a strong card to his fellow citizens of Newton county, asking them to vote for Major John O. Waddell for commissioner of agriculture. After speaking of his fitness and qualifications, the writer says:

"He is my maternal uncle. I am specially desirous that my adopted county should support him in the convention; therefore I ask my friends to vote for him. It will be to add another link to the chain which binds me in love and devotion to the good people of Newton, who have so often been my benefactors. I am under obligations for kindness shown."

The republicans of Columbia county have called a mass meeting for Saturday, July 21st, for the purpose of putting out a candidate for the legislature. The call, which is signed by republican leaders of that county, says:

"For the first time in the history of the county, a full republican ticket will be put in the field. This is not called for the purpose of antagonizing either the democratic or third parties, but to let them know that they are entitled to at least a fair share of the county. Lincoln, McDuffie and Wilkes counties are ready to send delegates to this meeting relative to the expediency of putting out a candidate for the senate."

people were fast losing respect for the powers that be, it says:

"In a large measure, this is true, and it will continue to be so, unless men who are elected to positions of power in the democratic party—the eastern element for instance—have more regard to promises made to the people in endeavoring to get into power. Few will not respect men who plant themselves on certain unmistakable principles and thereby secure a sufficient number of votes to get in, and then elected. The day of reckoning is fast approaching when the masses of American voters will hurl such an element from power."

Somebody has circulated the report that the editor of The Montgomery Monitor had said that he was going to vote for Hines for governor. This report naturally stirred up the feelings of the editor to an indignation point, and resulted in an editorial in which he declares:

"In 1872 we voted for Horace Greeley for president, because, and only because, he was the nominee of the democratic party. Mr. Greeley was then over seventy years old, and never had done one single thing in all his life to endear himself to the democracy. He was a man of no account, and before. He had spent all the energies of his long life fighting democracy and reducing the south; and after the war he had gone on the bond issue, and had advocated general amnesty for all rebels. For this one act of charity to the south the democratic party nominated him for the presidency. And now, when they say we voted for him. We have voted for the democratic nominee ever since and for years before. We are too old to bolt the nominee of democracy's choice, and we may be even if he is not our individual choice."

The Telfair Enterprise is one paper in the eleventh district which does not seem to be very enthusiastic on the idea of Judge Turner for the senate. That paper, discussing the situation, says:

"Hon. H. G. Turner makes us a fine congressman—as good as we wish, and better, perhaps, than we could get just now; we cannot see why the necessity of promoting him to the senate unless personal glory be our aim. If this is the object, no personal aggrandizement is worth the sacrifice of the public weal. We would rather see Mr. Turner willing to leave that field in which his services were most to his countrymen. He is too grand and self-sacrificing a man, in our judgment."

The Jasper Herald, sitting up the ninth district situation, says:

"Hon. P. C. Turner has been endorsed by every citizen in the ninth district that has held any kind of mass meeting. We have held said all the time, he will have no opposition, and we are sure that he will be elected. He has been so faithful to every trust imposed, and been so earnest in supporting the measures that are of most benefit to the people of his district, that we all desire to oppose him for the nomination. At present it looks as if Hon. Thomas E. Winn, of Gwinnett, or J. Newt Twitty, of Wilkes, or Charles H. Reynolds, of Wilkes, or the third party nomination is not equivalent to an election by any means."

The Cartersville Courier-American notes the return of Hon. R. W. Everett to congressional politics in this wise:

"Hon. R. W. Everett, in response to a request numbered by citizens of Polk county, formally announces his candidacy for congress from the seventh district, subject to the action of the democratic convention. Mr. Everett made an excellent member of congress during the term he served there, and proved himself a loyal democrat in all his utterances, votes and actions, and may throughout the district thought he deserved to be returned the last term."

The Madison Advertiser, acknowledging the receipt of a copy of Judge Lawson's speech in favor of the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on the issues of state banks, says:

"The Madison Advertiser has been half of a measure which The Advertiser wishes had become a law, and which would have been of vast benefit to the state, and which we believe would have taken the place of the 'subtreasury' or something better scheme advocated by the Farmers' Alliance in 1890. It is gratifying to find that Judge Lawson, a man of high character and high ability, is able to state his vote on all bills and questions before the house, and has been entirely in keeping with the interests of his constituents. We are glad to see him directly in accordance with the wishes of the large majority of the people of the old eighth. There is, then, no valid reason why he should not be returned to congress, and we believe the voters of the district will agree with us."

The Banks County Gazette, which is an Evans paper and has given the general loyal support, declares that "Governor Atkinson will sound much better than 'Governor Hines.' The Evans paper, which was nominated he can count on the support of The Gazette."

The Cleveland Progress finds some dissatisfaction among the people's party of that section on account of the nomination of Judge Madox for re-election. Speaking of Cleveland, the Progress says: "John W. Madox can rest assured that he will receive almost the unanimous support of this county for congress."

The Telfair Enterprise praises Speaker Crisp for his devotion to the interests of his party. Judge Crisp, it says, is going to do his duty to his party, no matter what becomes of his personal ambition to go to the United States senate. He has been elected to the senate by the people of Georgia, and he is booked for campaign work in other states as well."

"Whoever the democratic nominee may be for governor," says The Barnesville Gazette, "he must be elected. This is no time to make democratic success uncertain."

ONLY TWO ENTRIES.

Harry Stockell Retires from the Majority Race.

LEAVING MR. KING AND COLONEL SEALS

Only Entries—Mr. Stockell Says

His Business Requires His

Time and Attention.

Mr. Stockell's withdrawal will cause surprise when it becomes known.

April he formally announced himself as a candidate for mayor, and in a short time his friends rallied to his aid.

As though he would have a walk-over for the place. No one seemed disposed to enter the race, and he was already the strongest man in the place. But a record of the demand was made upon the minutes of the court.

The demand was made by Mr. Porter who has served the city in the general council and the county in the legislature. It was suggested as a candidate for the place. Between Mr. King and Mr.

Stockell the warmest friendship has always existed, and the political ties have been just as strong and great as those of any two gentlemen of all others should be. It was against each other in a political contest, and the friends of both were greatly interested in the welfare of the two gentlemen. It was therefore nothing but natural that the gentlemen should have the same feelings for their friends, loving each other as they do.

The friends of both gentlemen were greatly interested in the developments every day of the race. Mr. King's probable candidacy was a subject of much interest.

Last yesterday the entire matter was settled, and it was done through the wisdom and magnanimity of Mr. Stock-ell.

Mr. Stockell first entered the race with the full and complete determination of leading in the campaign which he had in mind. He was the leading man of the state at that time.

Mr. King's proposed candidacy, however, was a very different matter. He was not a candidate for mayor, but for the office of mayor. He was a very different man from Mr. Stockell.

He was a man of great ability, and he was a man of great energy.

He was a man of great courage, and

BESIEGED BY WOLVES.

By Harold Winter

"You want to get to your Uncle Sam's house, don't you?"

"Yes, Uncle Sam, I do."

"Well, you can't go there now. The house is full of wolves."

"Wolves?"

"Yes, Uncle Sam, they are."

"What kind of wolves?"

"The kind that eat people."

"How can they eat people?"

"Because they are so big."

"How big?"

"As big as a bear."

"Where are they?"

"In the woods."

"How many?"

"A lot."

"What are you going to do?"

"I am going to get a gun."

"Why?"

"To kill the wolves."

"What if they are too many?"

"I will shoot them all."

"What if you are not strong enough?"

"I will be strong."

"How?"

"By shooting them."

"What if you are not brave enough?"

"I will be brave."

"How?"

"By shooting them."

"What if you are not smart enough?"

A POLICEMAN'S GUN.

It Fired the Ball That Hit Patrolman Barrett.

IT CAUSED A SENSATIONAL REPORT

But Was Quickly and Satisfactorily Explained—Lacewell Talks Again.

Barrett May Die.

Yesterday developed some rather sensational stories in connection with the shooting of Patrolman Tom Barrett. One of those was that the pistol which Barrett was shot was the property of another policeman and was loaned to Lacewell for the purpose. The report was talked about in police circles, and yesterday afternoon Chief Connolly traced it to the bottom.

The basis of this report was that the pistol was really the property of Patrolman Alderman, but instead of being loaned to Lacewell by the officer, he was given him for trial with a view to purchasing it. It turned out that Lacewell tried it on Patrolman Barrett, and just how satisfactory the trial was to him he has not yet reported to Patrolman Alderman.

The pistol is a hammerless one, and was bought by Patrolman Alderman from Chief Connolly at the "old house" sale at police headquarters two weeks ago. A few days later Alderman let Lacewell have it for trial, as the young man wanted to purchase a gun. Up to the time the shooting occurred Alderman has not heard Lacewell's decision about the pistol.

Yesterday afternoon he was questioned about the matter by Chief Connolly.

"I don't know whether he did the shooting with the pistol I let him have or not," said Alderman, "I did let him have one a few days ago."

He was shown the pistol and immediately recognized it as his. His statement exploded the report that had got into circulation that the pistol had been loaned to Lacewell to defend himself against Barrett by a policeman. Alderman's statement, which was thoroughly satisfactory, was borne out by Lacewell, but Alderman is out one pistol.

Another story of why the shooting occurred was one given rise to by Lacewell's statement made yesterday, that Barrett had told him that the reason he was interfering Wednesday was because he was jealous of Mrs. Karwisch.

"The man that intimates that is a liar," said Lacewell last night. "I made my report to Chief Connolly for the reason that I had lost my position, and I thought the truth ought to be known. There was not a spark of malice in what I did. I felt that I had been treated wrong. When Barrett left the store, about 11:30 o'clock, he went home to get his citizen's suit, and when he was to come back and go with Mrs. Karwisch to the baseball game. After the ball game they were going to East Lake. I had left the store when he came back and saw that he did not look like a sick man, but he did not look like a sick man, and he said:

"Oh, no, I never show sickness. I hardly ever show what I feel in my appearance. It was regarded yesterday as extremely probable that Barrett would die from his wound. Yesterday morning he was unconscious, and for a time delirious.

The great fear of his physicians is that inflammation will ensue. In that case death would be almost certain to follow. The ball in his neck, which has not yet been taken out, is lodged near the jugular vein, and the effect of severe inflammation may readily be guessed. Barrett was very popular with the members of the police department, especially of the mounted force, and they were very solicitous concerning him yesterday.

WASHINGTON WORKERS

And the Great Dangers That Surround Them.

SENATORS INTERVIEWED.

Considerable Excitement Has Been Caused by the Sudden Breaking Down of so Many Prominent Men.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The excitement of congress and the interest caused by varying schemes and various measures have been overshadowed of late by a revelation of the alarming death rate among public men, and the additional fact that in nearly every case the cause can be traced to one source. The sad and sudden death of ex-Postmaster General Frank Hatton, who was stricken at his desk and died shortly afterwards, recalls the deaths of Secretaries Foster, Winslow, Chandler and Chase, and Senators Sumner, Beck, Cameron and others.

Now it has dawned upon the minds of the public men that there must be some one great reason for all these untimely deaths, and it has been traced directly to that great modern trouble which seems to be a natural scourge, Bright's disease of the kidneys.

An interview with a number of prominent men on the subject shows the interest they feel. Mr. J. Henderson Wilkinson, the well-known pension attorney, said: "Ten years ago I was seized with an attack of Bright's disease while at work in the treasury here. How bad I was you can understand when I say that my legs became bloated and actually cracked open. My limbs and body were alternately swollen and collapsed. I could only creep across the floor. Finally my physician said to me, 'You are at death's door with Bright's disease. You may live a few weeks, but there is absolutely no hope of your recovery.' Upon the advice of the Rev. Dr. Rankin, president of Howard university, I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which rescued me from the grave after the doctors had abandoned all hope. I am certain that if men and women generally realized the wonderful power of this great remedy there would be less sickness, fewer deaths, longer life and more happiness than at present."

Rev. Dr. J. E. Rankin, D.D., formerly chaplain of the senate, confirmed all that Mr. Wilkinson had said, and cited many other cases that had come under his notice where Warner's Safe Cure had restored the health of men and women suffering from Bright's disease. Congressman Belden, of New York; Senator Bruce, of Kentucky; the treasury department; Senator Blackburn and others, all united in similar statements.

Wherever I went I found the testimony the same. It was generally admitted that the citizens of life were wearing out, it was universally conceded that for overcoming this condition, for strengthening the vitality, for the health and prolonging life, nothing had ever been known equal to the great remedy I have above described.

"THE REASON WHY."

The principal causes of decay in meats and fruits are DAMPNESS and VARYING TEMPERATURE.

The qualities sought for in a Refrigerator are PRESERVATION OF PERISHABLE FOOD and an economical use of ice.

The "Alaska" is constructed upon the latest scientific principles, by which LOW TEMPERATURE and ABSOLUTE DRYNESS OF AIR are naturally and inevitably obtained.

The "Alaska" possesses a provision chamber FREE FROM ODOR AND FROM DAMPNESS. These results can be obtained only by a PERFECT CIRCULATION OF THE AIR in the Refrigerator, and its CONDENSATION IN THE ICE CHAMBER.

The "Alaska" keeps the air in contact with the ice longer than any other Refrigerator, condenses all the moisture before the air returns to the provision chamber, and in utilizing the cold air, PRODUCES BETTER RESULTS WITH LESS ICE than any other make.

The "Alaska" is a perfect DRY-AIR REFRIGERATOR, and the best one ever constructed.
